

What some of the other schools say about Willow on the Farm children:

Great Tew: ‘Children joining us from Willow always have an innate sense of curiosity, a desire to explore and find things out and a love of hands-on learning. They are keen and eager to learn, well-grounded in the basics and absolutely ready for Reception.’

Lucy Miles, Retired Headteacher of Great Tew Primary School

Winchester House: ‘We always love having children from Willow on the Farm join us at Winchester House at any age -they are curious, enthusiastic and relaxed learners with so many great learning foundations laid in the early years. It doesn’t surprise me that children that join us from Willow on the Farm thrive and flourish at Winchester House, as they have had such a great start to their learning journey. The style, ethos and community values at Winchester House make a natural bridge to that of Willow on the Farm. We Teach the Future, one child at a time captures the spirit of Winchester House - innovative, creative and forward-thinking, yet always rooted in warmth and care. For children starting at Willow on the Farm, it feels like a seamless and reassuring next step.’

Antonia Lee

The Dragon: ‘We encourage our Dragons to be curious learners, and we love Willow on the Farm children because they exhibit exactly those characteristics.’

Emma Goldsmith

Kitebrook: ‘WOTF and Kitebrook share universal ethos in their love of the outdoors. WOTF are inquisitive and have such an enthusiastic thirst for knowledge, so it is an obvious natural flow. We have many local families who come to both Kitebrook and WOTF.’

Betty Thomas, Kitebrook

Cokethorpe: ‘WOTF children are most recognisable for their love of the outdoors, willingness to try new things, compassion, and adventurous spirit!’
